ENGLISH (ENGL)

ENGL 110 Introduction to Literature: The Analytic Essay (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): WRIT 105 or HONP 100. Organized around individual instructors’ chosen topic or theme, this course will focus on the development of students’ skills in writing thesis-driven analytic essays about literary and cultural texts. Students will strengthen their reading and analytic abilities, using those skills to construct sophisticated arguments. Students will also develop and enhance their skills in academic writing by composing and revising essays in response to assigned readings. Meets Gen Ed - Communication: Literature.

ENGL 111 Introduction to Literature: The Short Story (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): WRIT 105 or HONP 100. This course will examine the genre of the short story and will include a focus on close reading, an analysis of narrative technique, and a consideration of historical context. The course will primarily focus on American authors but may also include representative examples from other literary traditions, including works in translation. Students will also develop and enhance their skills in academic writing by composing and revising essays in response to assigned readings. Meets Gen Ed - Communication: Literature.

ENGL 113 Introduction to Literature: Bestsellers and Popular Fiction (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): WRIT 105 or HONP 100. This course examines the phenomenon of bestsellers and what these texts reveal about the cultures within which they were produced. Bestsellers have played a pivotal role in influencing the literary climate since The Bookman introduced the bestseller list in 1895. Numerous lists now appear in newspapers, on websites, in journals and trade publications. They no longer merely chart reading trends but also influence them, propelling texts into the spotlight and defining culture for the masses. This course will include a focus on close reading, an analysis of narrative form, and a consideration of works in their historical contexts. The course will take a long historical scope and may include narratives in other media such as film. Students will develop skills in academic writing by composing and revising essays in response to assigned readings. Meets Gen Ed - Communication: Literature.

ENGL 114 Introduction to Literature: Utopian and Dystopian Fiction (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): WRIT 105 or HONP 100. This course will examine the related genres of the literary utopia and dystopia and will include a focus on close reading, an analysis of narrative form, and a consideration of works in their historical contexts. The course will take a long historical scope and may include narratives in other media such as film. Students will develop their skills in academic writing by composing and revising essays in response to assigned readings. Meets Gen Ed - Communication: Literature.

ENGL 115 Graphic Narratives (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): WRIT 105 or HONP 100. In the proposed course, students will study graphic novels and comics, as well as other forms of visual narrative art (including comic strips, illustrated texts, illuminated manuscripts, etc.) as literary forms. They will learn to contextualize graphic novels and comics as part of artistic traditions as well as important entries into popular culture. The course will emphasize the formal qualities of graphic narratives—their use of words and images—to enable students to analyze and interpret these texts. Students will thus look at graphic narratives from formal, social, and cultural perspectives. The reading list may include histories of comic production and reception by Robert Harvey, Charles Hatfield, or Roger Sabin; critical introductions to interpreting visual narrative by Hilary Chute, Scott McCloud, or W.J.T. Mitchell; books or collections by Marjane Satrapi, Harvey Pekar, Alison Bechdel, Art Spiegelman, Aaron MacGruder, Chris Ware, Bryan K. Vaughn, Frank Miller; studies of particular superheroes (Batman, for instance) or comic book producers (DC comics); and/or preceding examples of graphic narrative such as works by Edmund Spenser and William Blake.

ENGL 116 World Literature: The Coming of Age Theme (3 credits)
This course combines Western with non-Western works to approximate an approach to a “global perspective” on literature. It is designed to introduce the student to major works of world literature; to foster an international literary sensibility; to present a variety of cultural perspectives in a context which demonstrates how they are interrelated: to present students with assignments that will direct them toward developing skills of literary analysis and interpretation; and to guide students in deepening their awareness of the connections between national literatures and their cultural contexts. Meets Gen Ed - Great Works and their Influences.

ENGL 117 World Literature: Voices of Tradition and Challenge (3 credits)
Organized around the premise that writers have two fundamental ways of responding to the challenge of their culture, conformity or dissent, this course will present literary works in pairs that represent opposing ways of responding to the same subject. Meets Gen Ed - Great Works and their Influences.

ENGL 210 Myth and Literature (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): ENGL 110, ENGL 111, ENGL 113, ENGL 114, WRIT 106 or HONP 101. Myth and the myth-making process: the origins, meanings and major archetypes and motifs of Occidental and Oriental myths.

ENGL 227 Queer Fiction (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): ENGL 110, ENGL 111, ENGL 113, ENGL 114, WRIT 106 or HONP 101. A study of 20th and 21st Century fiction written by and about individuals of non-normative genders and sexualities. The cultural, theoretical, and historical forces that have informed this literature will be analyzed. Works may include texts by James Baldwin, Jeffrey Eugenides, Leslie Feinberg, Shyam Selvadurai, Dorothy Allison, and Alison Bechdel, among others.

ENGL 228 American Literature I: Beginnings to 1890 (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): WRIT 105 or HONP 100. A survey of American literature from the beginnings to 1890, with attention to major and minor writers in their sociohistorical context.

ENGL 229 American Literature II: 1890 to Present (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): WRIT 105 or HONP 100. A survey of American literature from the 1890 to the present, with attention to major and minor writers in their sociohistorical context.
ENGL 230  Images of Muslim Women in Twentieth Century Literature and Culture (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): ENGL 110, ENGL 111, ENGL 113, ENGL 114, WRIT 106 or HONP 101. Through an exploration of writings by and about Muslim women in various parts of the world, students will be encouraged to develop an appreciation of the variety of aesthetic forms and narrative structures embodied therein. Representation in other cultural forms such as film will also be looked at to challenge monolithic assumptions. Meets Gen Ed - Global Cultural Perspectives.

ENGL 234 American Drama (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): ENGL 110, ENGL 111, ENGL 113, ENGL 114, WRIT 106 or HONP 101. American drama chosen for excellence or representative of a significant era or movement in the theatre from the early 18th century imitative works through melodrama to the serious works of the 20th century. Centered on major American playwrights and their work. The course also examines the backgrounds of our modern stage, including readings in minor/historical works.

ENGL 237 Black Women Writers: US (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): ENGL 110, ENGL 111, ENGL 113, ENGL 114, WRIT 106 or HONP 101. This introductory survey course reads the literature - slave narratives, novels, poetry, drama, short fiction, essays, memoirs, autobiographies - by Black women from early slave narratives to the present. The works are read from socio-historical and cultural perspectives, and significant attention is given to the unique strategies and structures distinguishing an African American female aesthetic and critical tradition. Meets World Cultures Requirement.

ENGL 238 Black Writers in the United States: A Survey (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): ENGL 110, ENGL 111, ENGL 113, ENGL 114, WRIT 106 or HONP 101. Black writers in the United States from Colonial times to the present. Meets World Cultures Requirement.

ENGL 239 Social Protest Literature in America (3 credits)

ENGL 255 The Golden Age of Children's Literature (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): ENGL 110, ENGL 111, ENGL 113, ENGL 114, WRIT 106 or HONP 101. An introduction to anglophone children's literature during the period often designated as its "Golden Age," from the 1860s through the 1920s. Types of writing may include the following: early European fairy tales in translation, new fairy tales and fantasy, tall tales, religious and didactic writing, adventure fiction, female bildungsromans and family stories, school and animal stories, picture books, nonsense poetry, and children's theater. Historical matters addressed may include the history of childhood, the culture of sentiment, race and the post-Civil War U.S., and transatlantic print culture. Authors may include Lewis Carroll, Louisa May Alcott, L. M. Montgomery, Edward Lear, Mark Twain, George MacDonald, R. L. Stevenson, Eleanor Porter, Joel Chandler Harris, Harriet Spofford, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Kate Douglas Wiggin, L. Frank Baum, Kate Greenaway, Arthur Rackham, F. H. Burnett, Kenneth Grahame, Rudyard Kipling, Edith Nesbit, J. M. Barrie, and A. A. Milne.

ENGL 256 English Novel to 1900 (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): ENGL 110, ENGL 111, ENGL 113, ENGL 114, WRIT 106 or HONP 101. Form and theme of the English novel through the 18th and 19th centuries, evaluated by literary, social, moral and cultural criteria.

ENGL 260 Art of Poetry (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): ENGL 110, ENGL 111, ENGL 113, ENGL 114, WRIT 106 or HONP 101. An introductory course in reading, interpreting, and evaluating poetry. Attention is paid to style, form, and poetic convention.

ENGL 262 Art of Fiction (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): ENGL 110, ENGL 111, ENGL 113, ENGL 114, WRIT 106 or HONP 101. An introduction to form and techniques in fiction through close reading and discussion of representative texts.

ENGL 263 Art of Drama (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): ENGL 110, ENGL 111, ENGL 113, ENGL 114, WRIT 106 or HONP 101. This course explores the major forms, features, eras, and writers of world drama from ancient times to the present. Selections of plays explore ways in which cultural issues are performed. By examining a wide variety of such performances in their historical and political contexts, students will gain a broad appreciation for theater and a deep understanding of the many ways in which it expresses the tragedy and comedy of the human condition.

ENGL 274 Contemporary U.S. Literature of Immigration (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): ENGL 110, ENGL 111, ENGL 113, ENGL 114, WRIT 106 or HONP 101. Examines recent narratives about immigration to the United States through the fiction, drama, and poetry of ethnic American writers. Emphasis will be on 1990 to the present, and issues addressed might include transnationalism, US empire, the classic immigrant narrative, assimilation, and multiculturalism. Meets World Cultures Requirement.
ENGL 275  Vietnam War and American Culture (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): ENGL 110, ENGL 111, ENGL 113, ENGL 114, WRIT 106 or HONP 101. This course examines the problem of the legacy of the experience of the Vietnam War (sometimes called the "Vietnam Syndrome") as it is reflected in the culture of the United States and primarily in American literature since the end of the war in 1975. Differing discussions and evaluations of the problems bequeathed by the Vietnam War will be examined in works of political commentary, cultural criticism, history, and foreign affairs, as well as in literature.

ENGL 278  Survey of Brazilian Literature (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): ENGL 110, ENGL 111, ENGL 113, ENGL 114, WRIT 106 or HONP 101. An introduction to the literature of Brazil focusing on the second half of the 19th Century and continuing to the present day. The course is taught entirely in English. Major movements such as Indianismo, Brazilian Modernism, the "Cannibalist" approach, the Generation of 1945 and Concretism will be explored. The course will address a number of themes, such as the invention of national identity; the history of slavery; the celebration of interracial erotic desire; gender and its relationship to power; Catholicism and candomble; "Third World" capitalism and class struggle; and the politics of samba and Carnival as represented in the national literature.

ENGL 279  Latinx Writers in the United States (3 credits)
Prerequisite(s): ENGL 110, ENGL 111, ENGL 113, ENGL 114, WRIT 106 or HONP 101. A study of Latinx, Hispanic, and other Spanish-speaking or Latin American-descended writers in the United States. The course is taught entirely in English. The class will illustrate the history and diversity of the Latinx contribution to U.S. literature, challenging the exclusion of these writers and texts from the American canon, as well as exploring the shifting titles, identities and communities that are grouped under "Latinx." Students will read works from Latinx American writers that deal with significant political questions and will analyze how writers engage with these issues in a variety of literary forms. In addition, students will see the aesthetic experimentation by Latinx writers connected to modernist and postmodernist movements as well as their complex inheritance of "magical realism" from important Latin American writers. The reading list may include William Carlos Williams, Rodolfo Acuña, José Martí, Américo Paredes, Julia Alvarez, Cristina García, Sandra Cisneros, Piri Thomas, Gloria Anzaldúa, Guillermo Gómez-Peña, Junot Díaz, Ernstio Quiñonez, Gabby Rivera, and others.

An intensive examination of the writings of the three “Dark Romantics” of the American Renaissance, set against their biographical backgrounds and the literary and historical contexts in which they worked.

ENGL 557 American Realism (3 credits)
The development of American realistic fiction, with emphasis on the works of Twain, Howells, and James in relation to their literary heritage and to their social milieu. Attention will also be given to local-color writers, such as Jewett and Freeman, and to naturalist writers, such as Crane, Norris, and London.

ENGL 559 American Realism (3 credits)
After a brief examination of late nineteenth-century realism, the major writers of the twentieth century (up to World War II) are studied with special attention to the critical attitudes of the period and to related scholarship. Authors include Dreiser, Stephen Crane, Sherwood Anderson, Hemingway, and Faulkner.

ENGL 561 Modern American Poetry (3 credits)
Beginning with background material on late nineteenth-century poetry, the course examines selected major modern poets. The changing scene in modern poetry is noted, and the reading of contemporary poets is included. Works by Hart Crane, Hilda Doolittle, T. S. Eliot, Robert Lowell, Ezra Pound, Wallace Stevens, and others.

ENGL 563 Recent American Fiction (3 credits)
American fiction of approximately the last forty years in the context of American culture and traditions. The course analyzes the characteristics of theme, technique, and sensibility which form the basis of a writer’s response to the ambiguities of life in the contemporary world. Works studied might include Bellow, Roth, Didion, Walker, Doctorow, and Morrison.

ENGL 564 American Drama (3 credits)
The major American playwrights, such as Eugene O’Neill, Thornton Wilder, Arthur Miller, and Tennessee Williams, are placed in the perspective of their contemporaries and of the traditions of the American stage.

ENGL 565 Black American Women Writers (3 credits)
This course explores the writings of Black American women. We will examine the conditions out of which Black women write and the ways in which their works are critiqued and theorized. Discussions will center on questions of race, gender, sexuality, and class; narrative approaches and literary devices; and the Black “womanist” creative tradition.

ENGL 570 Teaching Literature through the Critical Essay (3 credits)
Pedagogical strategies to develop students’ written critical responses to literature and other cultural texts encountered in the secondary school classroom, or at other levels of education. Both literary criticism and pedagogical theory inform the syllabus.
ENGL 571  Teaching Methods (Secondary English)  (4 credits)
This graduate level course prepares students to teach English on the secondary level (grades 6-12). ENGL 571 is required for graduate students enrolled in either the Initial Certification or MAT program. The course familiarizes students with the English classroom, the design of lesson and unit plans, writing assignments, and alignment of classroom activities with state curriculum standards and assessments. Students explore and experiment with approaches to teaching selected literary texts, including the adaptation of teaching styles and materials to meet the needs of diverse learners. This course provides a foundational understanding of composition pedagogy, including how to respond to and assess student writing.
