HUMANITIES (HUMAN)

All HUMAN courses were previously listed as GNHU.

HUMAN 115 Troy and the Trojan War 3 Credits

For more than 3,000 years the story of the Trojan War has fascinated and attracted people throughout the world. Is the war completely "mythical?" How can different disciplines such as archaeology, linguistics, and literature be combined to shed light on the historical reality that may lie behind the story as it first appears in Homer? How have the art and literature of other cultures, such as the Romans, the European Middle Ages, or the modern culture of television and movies interpreted and reused the story of Troy, and what can this adaptation tell us about these cultures. Meets Gen Ed - Great Works and their Influences. 3 hours lecture.

HUMAN 151 Seminar: Inquiry in the Humanities 3 Credits

An introduction to the methodologies and modes of interpretation in the humanities. Students will concentrate on one contemporary problem or theme, approached from an interdisciplinary perspective. 3 hours seminar.

HUMAN 176 The Italian American Experience: On the Margins or in the Mainstream? 3 Credits

An introduction to Italian American Studies offering an overview of the Italian experience in the United States from the first great waves of immigration to today. Focus will be on the politics of representation of Italian American identity in works from a wide textual base: literature and journalism, cinema, the figurative arts, music, television, advertising, etc. Themes to be investigated include the trauma of separation, relationships with the dominant culture and other ethnic communities, and the formulation of ethnic identity in a U.S. context. A major component of this course will be oral history research in the local community. Taught in English. Cross listed with Educational Foundations, EDFD 176 and ITAL 275. 3 hours lecture.

HUMAN 181 Introduction to Classical Archaeology 3 Credits

This course focuses on the interplay between a new set of political realities and developments in literature, the visual arts, and the organization of private and social life. 3 hours lecture.

HUMN 360  The Roman Empire 3 Credits
Prerequisite(s): GNHU 201 or GNHU 281 or GNHU 282 or HIST 282 or departmental approval. Among empires ancient and modern, that of the Romans is especially noteworthy for its geographical extent, cultural richness and diversity, duration, and status as a model or anti-model for more recent politics. This course centers around the three and a half centuries from the establishment by Augustus of the regime known as the Principate to the period of Diocletian and Constantine in the fourth century CE, when changing conditions and new political forces began to alter its nature significantly. Emphasis will be placed on analyzing primary sources of information and on understanding the development of Rome from an outside power ruling a diverse collection of regions to an entity incorporating increasingly shared ideologies and other cultural habits. 3 hours lecture.

HUMN 361  Selected Topics in Mediterranean Archaeology 3 Credits
Prerequisite(s): GNHU 201 or GNHU 281 or HIST 282 or GNHU 282 or HIST 282 or GNHU 282 or HIST 282. The course consists of in-depth study of the archaeological evidence for a selected period, region, or other thematic topic within the ancient Mediterranean world broadly defined. Special attention will be given to the role which archaeology plays in reconstructing the history of past cultures and to the Mediterranean archaeologist’s frequent need to reconcile ancient written evidence with archaeologically obtained data. May be repeated twice for a maximum of 9.0 credits. 3 hours lecture.

HUMN 362  Field Methods in Mediterranean Archaeology 3-6 Credits
Prerequisite(s): One of the following: A previous course in some aspect of Mediterranean archaeology; previous archaeological fieldwork experience; or permission of the instructor. This course is a practical introduction to how archaeology is conducted in the field at an ancient site in the Mediterranean world. Students learn basic techniques of surveying, digging, artifact removal and processing, and on-site record keeping as well as the overall organization of an archaeological project in the field. The course is given on-site at an appropriate excavation location.

HUMN 501 In Pursuit of the Humanities: History, Critical Approaches, Methods 3 Credits

This course is an introduction to how and why the humanities have evolved as a discipline within education and within society as a whole from the age of the Sophists to the present; to the most influential contemporary theoretical approaches to studying texts and ideas within the humanities; and to the most important tools and resources for studying the humanities in an interdisciplinary sense. The course aims to foster a synoptic view of the humanities and a critical sense of how the humanities have evolved in close association with political, educational, and other societal forces, and continue to do so today. 3 hours lecture.

HUMN 502 Classical Traditions 3 Credits

This course examines how societies create and use canonical standards of excellence based on admiration for, and imitation of, "masterpieces" or "classics" of the past which are invested with a prescriptive status. Focusing especially on the west with its tradition centered on Ancient Greece and Rome, but also incorporating comparative material from non-western cultures, the course explores the ways in which classicism manifests itself in political thought, in literature, in mythology, and in art and architecture. It considers classicism in relation to theories of aesthetics, to the cultural hegemony of social groups maintained especially through education, to forces that oppose the classical, and to the general need of societies to value and to manipulate traditions. 3 hours lecture.

HUMN 531 Selected Topics in Ancient History 3 Credits

Each offering of the course explores a selected topic centered around a period, a theme, or a question chosen from ancient Mediterranean, Western Asian, or European socioeconomic, political, or cultural history. Topics may range in time from the Bronze Age to Late Antiquity. May be repeated twice for a maximum of 9.0 credits. 3 hours lecture.

HUMN 551 Selected Topics in Mediterranean Archaeology 3 Credits

This course consists of an in-depth study of the archaeological evidence for a selected period, region, or other thematic topic within the ancient Mediterranean world broadly defined. Special attention will be given to the role which archaeology can play in reconstructing the history of past cultures and to the Mediterranean archaeologist’s frequent need to try to reconcile ancient literary and epigraphical evidence with archaeologically obtained data. May be repeated twice for a maximum of 9.0 credits. 3 hours lecture.

HUMN 552 Field Methods in Mediterranean Archaeology 3-6 Credits

This course is a practical introduction to how archaeology is conducted in the field at an ancient site in the Mediterranean world. Students learn basic techniques of surveying, digging, artifact removal and processing, and on-site record keeping as well as the overall organization of an archaeological project in the field. The course is given on-site at an appropriate excavation location.
