ANTHROPOLOGY MAJOR (B.A.)

The general anthropology major, for which a B.A. degree is awarded, prepares students for advanced work that can lead to college teaching, museum curating work, and/or research, as well as careers in non-academic settings. For students interested in a strong liberal arts background, the general major is an excellent program which can be adapted to varied professional and career goals. An internship provides opportunities for students to test their knowledge in actual work settings. Students can major in Anthropology with Elementary Education Certification and then be qualified to teach grades K-6 in New Jersey Public Schools.

Suggested Free Electives
These courses are over and beyond the minimum 40 credits required by the major.

- ANTH 470 Archaeological Field Methods 3-6
